Dear Mr. Weisberg,

I recently received "Post Mortem" from you, and as usual, it is an excellent book. I read all I can on the assasination and I consider you by far the expert on the subject. I realize you receive letters from "buffs" all the time and I know you're probably tired of them. However, I honestly hope you can give me an answer to my question, as I have not seen a full explanation on it anywhere.

Here is a brief background - several years ago my hobby was writing to people in the news and collecting their replys. In the National Enquirer I saw an article on a man from Dallas named Edward J. Pullman who somehow was involved in practicing hypnotism. I can no longer find the article but I know he was a right wing, anti-Communist type. I received my letter back marked "~~Has~~ Insufficient Address." This was not unusual since the article just gave a general address. I thought nothing else of it until I came across his name in a list of people questioned by the Warren Commission, listed as a friend of Jack Ruby. I checked other books but I couldn't find him mentioned again, but his wife worked for Ruby at his club. There is probably nothing new to you in this, but here is my question - What do you know about Pullman's connection with Ruby and why was he questioned?

As you know, every so often someone comes up with a Manchurian Candidate type idea concerning not only Oswald but Sirhan, so I hope you don't find my question out of line.

Thank you for your time and have a nice Christmas.
